

Gemma Bailey

I began my career in 2012, working and volunteering in the heritage sector including at Leeds Discovery Centre and the Whitaker Museum and Art gallery. In 2016 I completed a Masters in Art Gallery and Museum Studies and began work at Bradford Museums, gaining experience handling a variety of collections across various sites. I am currently Assistant Curator at the Thackray Medical Museum, where I am responsible for managing the collection and exhibitions programme, along with supporting the interpretation activities for the museum's redevelopment.