

Mayuko Kai

I have studied BA (Hons) Art and Design at University of Leeds, where I was particularly interested in photography, moving image and installation artwork using those elements. Since graduating in 2014, I have been working for the Science Museum Group, mainly being involved in the Collections Management projects from the Documentation and Registration aspects at the various sites. I am currently the Documentation Coordinator at the Science Museum, working on and supporting Gallery Decant Projects but will be returning to the National Science and Media Museum, Bradford, where I am normally based, from July 2017.
