

Currently a freelance education practitioner and consultant, I've worked for a range of heritage organisations particularly across Yorkshire, including Scarborough Museums Trust, Ripon Museums Trust and York Minster. I specialise in working with family audiences and am passionate about promoting practical engagement with the arts (and the Arts Award) through my small business MakeMore ARTS.

Before returning to the heritage industry, I worked in secondary schools for over a decade, in various roles teaching English, art and drama, and as Head of English and Literacy Coordinator. I took up a role managing education across Scarborough Museums in 2014.

At their best, I believe museums are life enhancing and I am delighted to be involved with the Yorkshire FED.
